A Subdivision And Land Development Ordinance (SALDO) is a tool used by local and County governments to regulate land development. This SALDO will replace the County's Subdivision Ordinance that was adopted in 1962 and amended, most recently in 1990. The guiding principle of our SALDO is to promote, encourage, and ensure responsible development rather than to restrict development.

Our Draft SALDO document will be available starting Dec. 15th on our website, and at the following publicly accessible locations: All public libraries throughout the County, the Indiana County Commissioners Office (825 Philadelphia Street), local municipal offices, and at our office, the Indiana County Office of Planning & Development (801 Water Street).

See More Projects and Information on our website icopd.org or find us on Facebook @ICOPD or search Indiana County Office of Planning & Development.
